

Sinclair Broadcasting is going to air a one-sided documentary just days before our national election. They use the airwaves free of charge and are obligated to be fair and evenhanded in the servicing of public interests.

In attacking candidate John Kerry they are showing how dangerous large companies are when they control so much of the nation's airwaves...that belong to us, the people.

Their actions clearly show why we must strengthen media ownership rules, making sure the media gives balanced and fair reports to the public.

The media cannot support just one candidate or party. Doing so is an attempt to thwart the democratic processes that we hold dear. If they do so, despite our pleas and objections, they must lose their licenses.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. If they don't do so, they must have their license renewal application turned down.

THank you.
